

Dylan is a born and raised Calgarian who practices law in the area of commercial litigation and dispute resolution. He has experience representing clients in a wide variety of contentious matters before Alberta courts. Prior to his career in law, Dylan worked as a software developer – primarily in the health care space. He also previously served as an executive member for various student-led organizations. Dylan has a personal connection to epilepsy through a close family member and is passionate about advancing the EAC's mandate.